Such compounds may be formed almost at pleasure, by prefixing adh and nim to the primitives, which the reader may look for in their proper places; also the words under sem and hām. The above examples, which could be greatly extended, will suffice to explain how half is generally expressed in composition, though in a few cases, perhaps, the words sautelā, kachā, kam, may occur also, whence sautelā-bhāṣā, a half-brother; kachā-paisā, a half-penny, the pakka-paisa coming nearest in value to our penny.
